PETROLEUM is in more active demand, and firmer; we quote Crude at 47@47½; Refined in bonnets at 68@69c., and do, free, 69@70c. The following remarks of interest we clip from a very valuable circular published by the American Petroleum Institute:

lashed in this city. The market during the past week has been irregular. Crude declined to 43c, and was quite heavy, in sympathy with the decline in gold, but recovered to 44c, and is now at 44 1/2c. Gasoline has been strong at 67 1/2c. Refined, in bond, has continued dull at 72 1/2c, the transactions having been confined for the most part, to small purchases to complete cargoes. The principal points—Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and New-York—have not been so small as at present for the past two years, the stock in New-York alone, at the corresponding date of last year, having been 1,000,000 barrels of the total quantity of 1,500,000 barrels. The combination of the two factors, the decline in price and quantity, been in a measure nominal. At the close, however, with an improvement in price to 33c, the market is more buoyant at 42 1/2c. For Crude, the market is at 43c, and for refined, in bond, active at 66 1/2c, according to quality. A Titusville correspondent, under date of Nov. 28, 1864, writes as follows: "Crude at the wells today is $10 1/2 bbl.; barrels, $22 1/2. The roads are in bad condition for moving oil, and the oil is being moved, but owing to gross mismanagement on the part of the officers of the road. Oil is, therefore, going forward very slowly. There are no new wells to report this week." The following are the receipts at, and the exports from, New-York, of Petroleum, for the week ending and since January 1:

	For the week.	Since Same time Jan. 1, 1893.
Receipts of Petroleum, bbls.	8,730	657,156
Exports of Petroleum, bbls.	14,690	570,949
